Hidden Histories: A One-Day Symposium Showcasing New Research in Design History and Material Culture

The University of Brighton's Postgraduate Design History Society (PDHS) are hosting a one day symposium of recent and current research on Saturday 9 June 2007 at the Research Centre, Grand Parade, University of Brighton. The day will feature eight papers from our MA and PhD community across a range of topics and historical periods united by our common focus of design history and material culture studies. This event has been generously funded by the School for Historical and Critical Studies and the Research Student Division and will be free with a light lunch provided.
