

Lecturer in Digital Anthropology

Date : March 3, 2009

UCL Department of Anthropology

Applications are invited for a permanent lectureship in Digital Anthropology. The successful applicant will be responsible for, and will teach within, our new MA programme in Digital Anthropology and contribute to general teaching in Material and Visual Culture. They will carry out research in Digital Anthropology and contribute to normal administrative duties within the UCL Department of Anthropology.

Applicants should have a PhD and begun researching in the field of Digital Anthropology.

Applications from qualified candidates specialised in any area of the world are welcome. Further particulars are available on <http://www.ucl.ac.uk/anthropology/main/index.htm>.

This appointment is available from 1st August 2009 and the salary will be on the UCL scale Grade 7 in the range: £32,458 - £35,469 pa plus £2,781 pa London Allowance.

A UCL application form may be downloaded from the following link http://www.ucl.ac.uk/hr/docs/download_forms/job_app.doc.

Applications consisting of the application form, a CV, the names and contact details (certainly email) of three referees and a cover letter describing the candidate's research interests and teaching expertise should all be sent electronically to the Departmental Administrator, Mrs Alena Kocourek, email: a.kocourek@ucl.ac.uk .

Closing date: 1st April 2009.