

The Sophie Coe Prize in Food History 2015

Date : March 11, 2015

The Sophie Coe Prize is the longest-running and most generous prize for writing in food history in the English language, awarding £1,500 to the winning essay, article or book chapter every year. First given in 1995, the prize was founded in memory of Sophie Coe, the eminent food historian who died in 1994. It focuses on great writing about new research and/or new insights into the study of the history of food.

In 2015, our 20th anniversary year, the winner will be chosen – as usual - by an anonymous panel of distinguished judges and awarded to the author of an original, informative article or essay on any aspect of food history. Published and unpublished work may be submitted. If the former, it must have been published within the last 12 months of the submission deadline. If the latter, it must be in immediately publishable form.

The submission deadline this year is 1st May 2015. The winner will be announced and the prize presented at the Oxford Symposium on Food & Cookery on 4th July. For full details, including conditions of entry, previous winners, and to sign up for reminders and updates on the Prize, please consult our website at [sophiecoep prize.wordpress.com](http://sophiecoep prize.wordpress.com).
